

Abstract

English Version

African culture is rich and diverse, encompassing a wide range of traditions, languages, and practices. This presentation explores the significance of African music and dance, highlighting their role in community cohesion, cultural preservation, and social expression. Additionally, the presentation delves into the importance of gender awareness in African society, discussing how traditional roles are evolving and the impact of gender equality on cultural and societal development.